Technion Salutes its Honorary Doctors

Prof. David L. Donoho
USA

In recognition of your significant contributions to modern mathematical statistics, in particular the field of optimal algorithms for statistical estimation in the presence of noise and efficient techniques for sparse representation and recovery in large data sets; and in gratitude for your friendship and cooperation with Technion and its faculty.

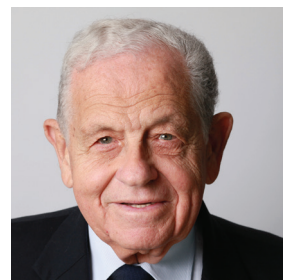

Prof. Odile Eisenstein
France

In tribute to your outstanding scientific achievements and your important fundamental contributions to the fields of organic, organometallic, catalytic, and computational chemistry; in recognition of your outstanding leadership in the international scientific community; and in gratitude for your friendship and support of the scientific community in Israel and Technion in particular.

Prof. Bernard Amadei
USA

In recognition of your pioneering research in geotechnology and your unique contributions to engineering education; with appreciation for your impact on society through the establishment of Engineers Without Borders – USA and co-founding Engineers Without Borders-International; and in gratitude for your support of its implementation at Technion.

Dr. Joseph Ciechanover
ISRAEL

In recognition of your outstanding contribution to the international standing of the State of Israel; in appreciation for your relentless and multi-faceted achievements as a jurist, economist, and statesman; and in gratitude for your long-standing support of Technion and its students as chair of the Dr. Yaacov Isler Foundation.

Emanuel Zvi Liban
ISRAEL

In recognition of your relentless efforts to promote the Israeli aviation industry and numerous innovative engineering solutions; in honor of your pioneering role in the field of jet and piston engine manufacturing, advancing Israel's economic wellbeing and security; and in gratitude for your involvement in educating new generations of mechanical engineers in the State of Israel.

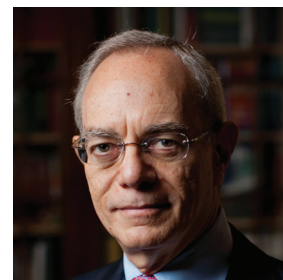

Martin Paul Moshal
UK

In recognition of your significant contributions to education and industry in Israel; in appreciation for your generosity – enabling disadvantaged students to attend Technion through the Moshal Scholarship Program, thereby profoundly changing their lives and the lives of those in their communities; and for your friendship to Technion.

Joseph Neubauer
USA

In tribute to your professional accomplishments in the business world and as the head of a Fortune 100 company; in appreciation for your contribution to many American and Israeli not-for-profit organizations and your belief in the importance of giving back; in recognition of your being a catalyst for excellence and diversity among our students and faculty; and in gratitude for your generous support of Technion and Israel.

Prof. L. Rafael Reif
USA

With appreciation for your outstanding leadership, pioneering work in 3D-integrated circuits, vision for education in the digital age, and cultivation of relations between MIT and Israeli universities; and in gratitude for your instrumental contributions to Technion's academic advancement.

The ceremony will be held on Monday, June 12, 2017, at 8:30 p.m.
